EXHIBIT DURING HEAVY DOWNPOUR

Several Classes at Manassas Shown While Rain Falls in Torrents.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Manassas, Va., July 18.—Rain which began falling in torrents about noon today turned the beautiful grounds of the Prince William Horse Show into a sea of mud and water, and thoroughly drenched hundreds of those who had come to witness the day's exhibit of the Manassas horse show. The rain began to fall just as the class for harness horses was getting into the ring, and it looked as though the show would have to be postponed until the shower was over. However, Miss Jane Duffield, of Dumfries, who was in charge of the harness class, decided to go on with the show, and the harness class was the only one that was shown today.

CASTRO FURNISHES REAL CIRCUS PLAY

Colts Take Advantage of Much Bungling and Gather Four Runs on One Hit in Eighth, Cinching Game and Making Honors Easy.

BY GUS MALBERT.

When it comes to turning one's fancies back to the days redolent of sawdust and a three-ringed entertainment, no single individual in this wide, wide world is better qualified to act the part of ringmaster than our quondam friend, Lucius Castro, manager for Charlie Bland's Portsmouth ball club. Just before activities started in the tired lot yesterday, Lucius had it on the Colts by 100 per cent in the series, which will end to-morrow night, having annexed two to Griffin's one. Proud of mien and puffed of chest, he strutted unobtrusively before the assembled populace in a sort of Marcanthony fashion with a stride which would have put to blush a Marathon winner at the Olympic games. Just two things, however, interfered with the plans laid by Lucius—Doctor Willium Ayers and the three-ringed performance referred to. Richmond had seven and Portsmouth two when Joe Heusler rang down the curtain.

Twice during the gladiatorial contest was the score tied. Many times did Lucius threaten with his brave warriors to add another defeat to the string of two which he has acquired. But when the crowd roared trembling on its collective toes, when the girl with the purple sunshade quailed and blanchied beneath the coat of tan which she wore as a souvenir of the torrid sun, when the dark cloud to the east of the grassed diamond veiled its most superlative rays, then Stephen P. Griffin, aided and abetted by eight assistants, exacted danger to the rear and rose triumphantly from beneath the mass of possible defeat.

Good Until Eighth.—However, regardless of the joy which now reigns in Colville, the gap having been considerably lessened by the victory, the pain for the afternoon's entertainment goes to Castro and his Barnum-and-Bailey imitators. Until the kaleidoscopic panorama began in the eighth no better ball game had been looked upon locally this season. Johnny Verbout was the losing selection from Bienville, while William Ayers was on the hitlist for Richmond. Both were going at an even pace, assisted well by their friends, the players. Richmond had scored three times, one each in the first, fourth and seventh. Portsmouth had counted twice, one in the third and another in the fifth and then—the grand explosion.

When one safe sweat nets four runs something obviously peculiar has happened. Indeed, it was more than peculiar, it was funny, real funny, because the home club benefited. Analyzing that eighth inning one finds that four errors, a sacrifice and some clever running of the bases aided materially. Griffin began the trouble as he batted a leading hit to Cooper. The third-sacker pulled Watson off the bag on his high leave and Griffin was safe. Burke sacrificed and was also safe. John Verbout getting his medal extremities tangled with the ball, Haley dumped and Castro, playing well up in the diamond, tossed him out while Griffin and Burke remained the baseless further on. Tennant mystified the whole Portsmouth crew as he flattened a ball just in front of the plate. Griffin, trying to get Griffin, who started for home with the crack of the bat, made a bundle of the play.

Helped by Good Paying.—Ayers was a creature of circumstance and was scored on only twice, because all of the breaks and much good playing came to his assistance. Two fast doubles certainly kept him out of trouble at critical times. In the third Cooper beat out an infield hit and went to second as Griffin drew a pass. Verbout forced Cooper at third, but Becker was hit in the head and the bases were full with one down. Keating rammed to center putting Griffin over, but was caught as Burke made a beautiful running catch of Nixon's left. It looked powerful equally as the darky would
